"Whilst it is relatively straightforward to list the services provided it is proving difficult to show how therapy and other health services are accessed. The provision of therapy services does not appear to be sufficient for the needs of children with SEND in the borough and the Local Offer may raise parental expectations of the level of service they can receive. A group has been formed to consider the joint commissioning of health, social care and education services. This group will consider how joint commissioning could improve the amount of service available within the budget envelope. In order for parents to use the Local Offer to determine how they will spend a personal budget it is necessary to identify a unit cost for services for which the data is not currently available. Work is well underway to ensure that accurate data is held and shared" "Parents will require considerable support to enable them to be at the centre of this planning and key workers are recommended. There is currently no additional funding for key workers and so the support will need to be provided by a number of professionals as part of their role."
